Galli-Curci in 'La Sonnambula' Among the Operas

Five Works at Two Houses Are the Saturday Of-

Five operas were sung in the two opera houses yesterday. At the Manhattan in the afternoon "La Sonnambula" was given with Mme. Galli-Curci as Amina and Tito Schipa as Elvino. Several others also were in the cast, but were not conspicuous. Mme. Galli-Curci began badly, singing with unsteady tones, with veiled quality, with uncertainties as to pitch, and with raggedness in ornament. After Mr. Schipa's enerance coval matters improved perceptibly. Not that the distinguished tenor did anything of the highest importance at the outset, but he seemed to have an excellent effect on the diva, who rose from her lyric jungle and became a real song bird. The duet which concludes the first act was very well sung indeed.

In the evening the opera was "Faust," wedding of interest not only to Saratoga Springs but throughout the country and sarwing the throughout the country and sarwing the throughout the country and sarwing but throughout the country and sarwing the throughout the country and sarwing but throughout the country and sarwing as well took place this morning at Yaddo when Mrs. Katrina Trask, widow of Spencer Trask, was married to Mr. George Foster Peabody. TWO ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

Two orchestral concerts were given in Carnegie Hall yesterday and at each a symphony by Dvorak served for the backbone of the programme. Mr Monteux at the Boston Orchestra's matineconcert got the start of Mr. Stransky at the Philharmonic's entertainment in the evening by playing the Bohemian master's seldom heard but fine and joyous Second Symphony, while Mr. Stransky, having first announced Borodin's second, had later changed this work for the "New World." Mr. Monteux's other numbers were Scott's two passacaglias, admirably built on two Irish meiodies—"The Irish-Famine Song" and "The Poor Irish Boy"; Roger-Ducasse's effectively orchestrated "Suite Francaise," which is not to be confounded with his "Petite Suite," and enclosing Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" overture.

Suite, 'and enclosing Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" overture.

Mr. Monteux is usually a good programme maker and the one he gave yesterday was of his best. There were no dull moments. The orchestra played well throughout, but strangely enough it cellipsed all its previous work in the Wagner music. The brilliancy, balance, beautiful nuance and finish here displayed brought vivid memories of the orchestra's famous days.

Mr. Stransky's evening list further ontained Kalinnikov's tone poem, "The ir Tree and the Palm." Tschaikovsky's flat minor piano concerto and the Capriecio Espagnol' of Rimsky-Korsavy. Josef Lhevinne, a familiar pianist re in the concerto, was the solo player. hestra's famous days.

FRIEDMAN, PIANIST, PLAYS.

FRIEDWAN, PIANIST, PLAYS.

Ignaiz Friedman, pianist, gave another recital yesterday afternoon in Acolian Hail. His programme included Chopin' B minor sonata, Mozart's A minor rondo, the Bach-Busoni chaconne, and Lisat's "Don Juan" fantasy. Nothing new can be said of the brilliant playing of this virtuoso. He is one of the greatest living masters of the keyboard, equipped with a technic which must be the envy of many other pianists of serious aims.

ists of serious aims.

Friedman can play beautifully on he wishes to do so, as was shown when he Mozart rondo, which was given with extraordinary delicacy and finish. When he wishes to parade his technical skill at the expense of a composer's designs he does not hesitate, but even then his achievements in clarity and swiftness compel a certain admiration. He was heard yesterday afternoon by a

AMERICAN PIANIST HEARD.

Warner Hawkins, an American plan Warner Hawkins, an American planist living in New York, who has played in many large cities of the Middle West, gave his first recital here last evening in Acollan Hall. He showed himself to be an artist of much musicianly intelligence. He offered a difficult and well chosen programme beginning with the sonata opus 2, No. 3, of Beethoven, and further containing works of Chopin, Debussy, MacDowell, Liszt and other writers. In the sonata his tone was clear. bussy, MacDowell, Liszt and other writers. In the sonata his tone was clear, though prone to become hard in louder passages; his technic was secure and his ideas about phrasing and style good. He had a large and approving audience.

MISS LYON MARRIED TO FARGO BALLIETT

Motion Pictures Among Diversions at the Kettledrum

Rip Van Winkle' and 'Black Beauty' Shown at Annual Event for Charity.

There was a good showing of the juvenile element of society yesterday afternoon in the ballroom of the Plaza, where was held the forty-fourth annual St. Valentine's kettledrum for the benefit of the Samaritan Home for the Aged, which is at 414 West Twenty-second street.

The kettledrum has been a fixture for all these years, and the young have looked forward to it with much pleasure and anticipation from year to year. The programme during all this time rarely has varied except with the introduction of motion pictures, which nowadays are so popular with young and old. Yesterday afternoon there were shown two reels, one of the ever entrancing legend of "Rip Van Winkle" and the other of "Black Beauty."

"Rip Van Winkle" and the other of York, to Dr. Joseph Anthony Mooney, son of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Mooney of Brooklyn, in the Church of St. Chrysostum by the Rev. James Rogan of Elimbhurst, a classmate of the bridegroom, his Adele A. Sullivan, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mr. Archibald Mooney, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. James Powers and Edward Mooney. The couple will live at 1762 Grand Concourse.

CONNOR—ELLIOTT.

Miss May C. Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott of New York, was married yesterday to Mr. Joseph Connor, son of Mr. William Connor of 273 East 144th street, in the Church of Our Lady of Good Council.

"Rip Van Winkle" and the other of Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris directed dancing, and the only departure from the regular programme was the five method of the flower table, over which for years Mrs. Clarence G. Dinsmore has presided. In place of selling flowers Mrs. Dinsmore collected several hundred dollars from her friends. Among others assisting were Mrs. Gustav E. Kissel, president of the home, who succeeded the late Mrs. Irvin, who served in that capacity for more than forty years. At the various tables were Mmss. Ethioman Lawrence, James Benkard, William D. Guthrie, Was married yesterday to Mr. Joseph Connor, son of Mr. William Connor of 273 East 144th street, in the Church of Our Lady of Good Council.
